

Douglas Eckenrod retired as the Deputy Director for the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, Division of Adult Parole Operations, a Law Enforcement Agency of over 2000 sworn. He has dedicated his career to improving the effectiveness of the criminal justice system and the safety of those who work in it. In retirement, Eckenrod shares his expertise and experience with policy and lawmakers in efforts support improvements to public safety. Over his 21-year law-enforcement career, he has worked in, supervised, and managed California State Parole's Sex Offender, Gang, and State Fugitive operations. He also chaired the State of California's Weapons and Safety Committee, Use of Force review committee, managed Peace Officer Academy Operations, as a Chief Deputy he oversaw Parole Field operations for the State of California. Eckenrod is a graduate of the Los Angeles Police Departments Leadership Academy and is currently an opinion writer for the Epoch Times covering criminal justice related topics. Eckenrod currently serves as an Arizona Ranger in the Lonesome Vally Company.