

Andrea Kadar is a Conservative political activist who believes that all Conservatives should be educated on current issues, be involved in the political process, and VOTE.

After moving to Arizona from Texas in 2011, Andrea was part of a leadership team that created Citizens for America (“C4A”), a Verde Valley political activism and educational organization. C4A's mission is to attract all northern AZ voters to monthly meetings in order to educate them and call them to political involvement.

Andrea is a Precinct Committeewoman in Yavapai County and is also a member of the “Arizona Liberty” grassroots activist team that informed Verde Valley voters on the unintended consequences of an attempt to designate 160,000 acres surrounding Sedona as a “National Monument”. “Arizona Liberty”, and its activists, defeated the federal government's monument designation efforts in 2015.

Andrea and her husband, Dwight, were awarded the 2015 Americans for Prosperity-Arizona's “Activists of the Year” for their grassroots efforts in Northern Arizona.

Andrea was a Delegate from Congressional District 1 to the Republican National Convention in 2016 and was one of two Delegates from Arizona to serve on the Republican National Platform Committee.

She is a former Board Member, and former Awareness Committee member, of the Coalition Against Human Trafficking, Northern AZ, an activist team fighting the scourge of human sex and labor trafficking in northern Arizona. She currently speaks and volunteers state-wide as an Ambassador of Hope for Shared Hope International, an international anti-sex trafficking advocacy group.

She is a trained presenter against recreational marijuana use -and- against the abuse of opioids, heroin, cocaine, meth, synthetics and fentanyl. She supports Arizonans For Responsible Drug Policy and MATFORCE.

Andrea served on the 2020 Steering Committee of “Heart to Heart”, an organization of Christian women, whose mission is “connecting women to the heart of God through prayer, study, fellowship and love”. She is also the founder of “Two-Fer Tuesday”, a ministry that blesses and supports small businesses, 501c 3's, law enforcement and indigenous peoples in Northern Arizona with cash and supplies during the pandemic.
