

Kim Miller is the Founder and Director of Arizona Women of Action, launched in October 2020 by a group of eight busy women on a text chain who decided to take ACTION for American freedoms--and empower their friends to join with them! They share important local actions you can take each week that promote strong families, safe cities, and thriving kids. Whether you have five minutes or five hours, AZWOA's mission is "Effective Action, on your schedule". Arizona Women of Action now has more than 10,000 followers who engage with their weekly Call to Action Update email and social media. They find courage and inspiration together with other busy women, connecting in action to revive Americanism.

Kim is grateful for her husband Matt whose family has farmed and ranched in Arizona and California for three generations. They're blessed with five kids and three grandchildren. Kim graduated from the University of Arizona with a degree in Journalism. She spent most of her working career in media sales for KRON-TV, San Francisco, and for KTSP/KSAZ-TV, Phoenix before accepting the full-time blessing of raising kids, and teaching in worldview ministries. If she slows down, she loves to read, write, hike, and visit their Flagstaff ranch with family and friends!
